

FIND YOUR WHY

I can shake my pom-poms at you all day long, but I can't be there for you every day, or when you need it most: when you're all alone, sitting at home feeling like you want to stop hunting for a new job. And let's be honest: some days, my positivity is REALLY annoying! I can't be there for you every time you need a little burst of hope and courage ... but the people and things that matter most to you in life can be there for you. On those really hard, dark and overwhelming days ... let the light of a brighter day and life on the other side pull you up & give you the strength to try again. Get clear on what your key motivators are, right now ... before the sun forgets to rise for you one of these days.
